Anwar,

On behalf of the Houston Chapter of the PMI, I would like to thank you for taking the time out of your busy schedule to make your presentation to our members today.

The Houston Chapter of the PMI takes pride in the high level of professionalism with respect to the Speakers with whom we have been associated. Your message and level of expertise is inspirational to our members and will, no doubt, increase their knowledge and therefore increase professionalism within Project Management.

Thanks once again Anwar.

Yours sincerely

Raymond G. Piper

Anwar Motan and Harry Harrison - RCG Information Technologies

Anwar Motan is a Clinical Systems Architect and Project Manager with over 25 years experience in Information Technology of which the last fourteen years have been spent in healthcare. Anwar has a BS in Computer Science from the U of H. and has written several articles for healthcare publications. Harry Harrison (see adjacent photograph) has 33 years IT experience with the last five spent in healthcare. Harry and Anwar both are Senior Project Managers with RCG Information Technologies and are currently on assignment to the Y2K Program Office at Memorial Hermann Hospital System.

Over the past several years, healthcare executives have looked to integrated healthcare delivery as the answer to many of the problems healthcare organizations still face today. Integrated healthcare delivery was to provide the opportunity to reduce costs and better coordinate care at all levels. While many organizations now have the components for integrated delivery systems in place, few have realized the true benefits integration promised. Anwar Motan, Clinical Systems Architect and Senior Project Manager believes one system is clearly an exception, King Faisal Hospital in Riyadh, Kingdom of Saudi Arabia.

Anwar will share with us how he and a team of dedicated individuals transformed this small nondescript hospital into a world-class integrated healthcare delivery system in an environment where true clinical integration could only be achieved by solid governance, a leading edge IT infrastructure, and adherence to sound project management principles and practices. Harry Harrison will discuss how project management will play an even greater role in achieving true integrated healthcare delivery as we enter the new millennium.

Meetings are held at the H.E.S.S. Club, 5430 Westheimer, Houston TX
Registration: 5.00 to 6.15pm. Dinner: 6.15 to 7.00pm. Program: 7.00 to 8.30pm.
